

WATER CANADA

What Does It Take to Make the World's Purest Water?

Full Steam Ahead for Alberta's Oil Sands

Irrigation: Not As Wasteful As It Seems

Hide and Seek: Capturing Leaky Data

PLUS: Filtration Goes Bananas and a Floating Orb Charts the Exploits River

14

32

38

WATERCANADA

SEPTEMBER/OCTOBER 2011

VOLUME 11 NUMBER 5

FEATURES

36 Report Rundown

Recent reports, papers, and studies from the Canadian water spectrum and beyond.

38 The Big Chill

Natural wastewater treatment systems for deep freeze climates.

BY MARK LINER

50 Upgrade, Expand, Connect

Quality-based selection helps Kingston's wastewater treatment plant streamline its procurement and bidding process.

BY TRISH WOZNUK

54 Technological Exploits

A small, non-human explorer experiences the wild current of a river.

BY KERRY FREEK

58 Good Vibrations

Associate editor MIRA SHENKER talks sensors and power.

59 A Flood Fix

Manitoba builds an emergency channel to drain floodwaters.

60 Fecal Forensics

Tracking animal and human waste in water.

BY SYLVIE HILL

66 Savings at the Forefront

Composting toilets are par for the course.

BY AL SEYMOUR

INDUSTRY &amp; WATER

10 Full Steam Ahead

Alberta's oil sands developers look to Canadian companies to fix their water issues.

BY JOHN NICHOLSON

14 Surcharge Solutions

Mounting costs and higher standards forced one snack food plant to look at new options.

BY JIM MACMAHON

20 Nothing But Hs and Os

Bringing water to its purest state is vital for the high-tech and health industries.

BY LAURA BROOKS

24 Gaining a Competitive Edge

The right policies around agriculture and water management could help save the economy.

BY DIANNE CUNNINGHAM AND MELISSA HARRIS

28 Water on the Farm

Economist and prolific blogger DAVID ZETLAND argues that irrigation isn't as wasteful as it seems.

32 Time to Backtrack

Mining companies are cleaning up their acts.

BY SAUL CHERNOS

35 The Supply Chain Challenge

Setting goals for water conservation when you don't own the site.

REGIONAL FOCUS: ONTARIO

46 Light Shower Towers

Toronto's new park attempts to bring water back into the public realm.

BY KERRY FREEK

48 News FedDev Ontario and IBM invest

$40 million in SOWC; the Province announces the WaterTap board.

COLUMNS

42 Liquid Assets

Are you leaking water or data?

BY GRAHAM SYMMONDS

64 To Tap and Back

The Transitions Network helps communities make decisions about water management.

BY KEVIN WONG

74 H2Opinion

Getting more out of public consultation.

BY LUCY KEATING

DEPARTMENTS

5 Editor's Note

Water's lead role.

BY KERRY FREEK

6 Comment ROBERT SANDFORD

takes issue with Environment Canada's recent budget cuts.

7 Front Water filtration goes bananas.

67 News Positions, awards, and moves.

70 Events A cyborg gives lessons in the

hydraulophone, a concept water treatment store opens, and we go to Montreal to learn about sustainable, green cities.

50

54

60